Food price freeze lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are facing significantly higher food prices now that President Nixon has lifted the price freeze from the food industry as part of his Phase 4 anti-inflation program.

Only beef remains subject to strict price ceilings, and then only until Sept. 12. Lifting the freeze from the food industry was Nixon's first move into his new Phase 4 wage and price controls system.

Non-food items will remain under the provisions of the 60-day freeze announced June 13 by Nixon, until its expiration Aug. 12. At that time non-food goods will become subject to Phase 4 regulations.

There will be price ceilings for gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel under Phase 4, and big business will be required to absorb some of its increased costs by cutting down on profit margins.

The President said in a statement issued Wednesday: "There is no way, with or without controls, to prevent substantial rise of food prices."

"The evidence is becoming overwhelming that only if a rise of food prices is permitted now can we avoid shortages and still higher prices later," he said.

Prices are likely to increase the most in the next few days for poultry and pork products, and fresh fruits and vegetables, all of which were reported to be severely pinched by the price freeze.

The President said he would do "everything in my power" to end wage and price controls by the end of the year, but said he did not think it wise to set a specific date for lifting controls.

With President Nixon in Bethesda Naval Hospital recovering from viral pneumonia, Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz released the following outline of Phase 4 to newsmen at the White House Wednesday:

—The price freeze is lifted immediately for all food, except beef, permitting the passing on to consumers of increased costs for raw agricultural products that have occurred since June 8. Raw agricultural products remain exempt from controls.

—It will be a mandatory program, requiring advance 30-day notification of price increases by businesses with annual sales of more than $100 million.

—Small businesses employing 60 persons or less will be exempt. So will the lumber industry, public utilities, rents, interest rates and long-term contracts for coal deliveries.

—The guidelines for wage increases will be kept at 5.5 per cent, plus a seven-tenths of one per cent hike in fringe benefits, the same guidelines in effect during the Phase 2 and Phase 3 programs.

—The Health service industry—hospitals and institutions—will be exempted from the freeze at once and returned to the mandatory controls that existed specifically for the health industry under Phase 3. It was not immediately clear how doctors and dentists would be affected.

—The insurance and construction industries will

Police to change information policy

The Sikeston police Department will make a major policy change in its method releasing information concerning crimes which happen in the city limits.

Beginning Monday, the police will not release information on crimes which may be tried in Magistrate or Circuit Courts which would hamper prosecution or help prevent the capture of suspects. The action was taken at the request of Scott County Prosecuting attorney Jim Moore, according to Acting Police Chief Leon Culp. However, Moore said the decision was the police department's and that he just allowed his name to be used in the announcement.

The release of information will be handled by either Culp or by an information officer to be appointed soon. In the past, reporters were allowed to read police investigation reports.

In addition, the names of persons arrested for investigation of crimes will not be given out until they are actually charged.

The Daily Standard expressed concern this morning that the policy could lead to a blanket of silence concerning crimes in the city. Culp promised it would not.

He ssid the only thing he wanted to stop was the use of descriptions of suspects and minor details about crimes that could hamper a suspects apprehension.

Culp said the city would follow the guidelines issued by the St. Louis Prosecuting Attorney's office. Facts that should be released, according to the guidelines, include the subjects name, age, address, occupation and family status; the name of the investigating officers and the current status of the case; a general description of the subject matter the crime, such as stolen property, narcotics, and obscene material;

The identity of the victims, except in rape and child molestation cases or when disclosure would impair further investigation or handling of the case;

If the suspect has not been captured, any information which may aid in capturing him and also any warning necessary to protect the public from any danger the suspect may present;

The nature of the crime, such as "at 11 p.m. Wednesday a lone gunman held up a service station..."

In the event the case is disposed of and the matter

3 hurt in SeMo accidents

Three persons were injured Wednesday in two area accidents, the highway patrol reported today.

Wilma Mae Nations, 52, of Fredericktown received minor injuries at 12:30 p.m. on Highway 67, six miles north of Fredericktown when the left front tire blew out on a tractor-trailer truck driven south by James George Holshouser, 37, of Caseyville, Ill., knocking off the safety rim which went through the windshield of the northbound Nations car.

Mrs. Nations was taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital in Fredericktown.

Two cars collided at 11:15 p.m. at the junction of Highways 51 and 72 north of Patton.

The accident occurred when a car driven south by Janice Moore, 26, of Atlanta, Ga., ran a stop sign and was struck broadside by a westbound auto driven by Doyle Denbow, 38, of Ironton.

Mrs. Moore received cuts and a broken pelvis and her husband, Welsley Moore, 28, suffered cuts and a bump on the head. Both were taken to Perry County Memorial Hospital in Perryville.

Stone is Lilbourn Man of the Year

LILBOURN-- Lewis W. Stone, former Lilbourn mayor and Realtor, has been named Man of the Year by the Kiwanis Club and volunteer fire department.

Stone was awarded the title for his many years of dedicated service to the community as seen in the conduct of his business, his work in his church, civic organizations and city government.

He served several terms as mayor of the city and, upon election to his first term, was the youngest man ever elected to the post here. During his service as mayor, the city installed water and sewage works.

At Lilbourn United Methodist Church, he has held many offices, including treasurer, Sunday school superintendent and member of the official board.

A member of the Masonic lodge, he has also served it in many official capacities.

Stone is a charter member of the Lilbourn Kiwanis Club and has served as vice president and president.

His wife is the former Lola Simpson, and they have two daughters, Mrs. Lenora Jo Jost and Mrs. Mary Ella Riley. Lewis Stone day has been set for Saturday. He will be honored in ceremonies on the Summer Fun Days midway stage at 3:45 p.m.

3 named in federal indictment

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A federal grand jury returned indictments Wednesday against three men who have already been charged by the state in connection with the bizarre kidnap- extortion - murder of a Grandin, Mo., banker, his wife and daughter.

The indictments named Dallas Ray Delay, 33, Lloyd D. Cowin, 20, and Jerry W. Rector, 22, all of Van Buren. Delay was charged with bank robbery and with kiiling of bank president Robert R. Kitterman, his wife Bertha, and their teenager daughter Roberta to avoid apprehension. Cowin and Rector were charged with bank robbery and kidnaping.

U. S. Attorney James E. Reeves said he asked for the federal charges to make certain the three men are never freed.

"In my judgment, this was a most heinous crime," Reeves said. "I want to make sure these people never get out of prison."

Delay pleaded guilty to three counts of first- degree murder in the case and is currently serving the first of three consecutive life terms in prison. Rector has been sentenced to three concurrent prison terms of life, and Cowin is awaiting trial on murder charges.

Humane officer reprimanded

Humane officer Terry Grower has been reprimanded after The Daily Standard informed city officials of reports that he had beaten dogs to death on three different occasions.

City Manager Jim Huff said Grower, the humane officer since June 29, admitted killing the dogs by hitting them with his night stick but denied beating them to death.

One incident occurred last week on the west side of town when Grower saw a dog following some children. Grower says he asked the children if the dog was theirs, and when they told him no, he went to pick up the dog. It bit him and he struck it twice with his night stick, killing it, he said. Witnesses were disturbed because Grower had killed the dog in front of the children.

The witnesses said the children tried to stop Grower while he was hitting the dog. Grower said one of the children had tried to stop him when he tried to pick up the animal.

Another incident occurred Sunday on West Murray Lane when he went after a dog that had been chasing children, Grower said. He said he advanced on the dog, and the dog advanced on him. Grower said he hit the dog with his night stick four times and killed it.

Another incident occurred at the corner of Osage and Thompson streets when Grower went after a pack of five dogs. One of them was killed with a night stick.

Huff said Grower was told to be more careful in the future.

WAS DON JUAN UNDERWEIGHT?

Remember the story about the would-be author who thought he had hit upon a sure- fire best- seller?

Discovering that the most popular books were about Abraham Lincoln, followed by books about doctors, followed by books about dogs, he named his opus "Lincoln's Doctor's Dog."

It's been a long time since that formula sold many books. Today, the sex manual is riding high, including those that tell you more than you ever really wanted to know.

"Lincoln's Doctor's Dog" is brought to mind, though, by the title of one of the latest of these manuals which managed to kill two birds with one tome. That is, it combines two popular anxieties of Americans — sex and overweight.

"How Sex Can Keep You Slim," by Abraham I. Friedman, M.D., is billed as "the diet program you've always wanted."

"Reach for your mate instead of your plate," reads an ad run by the publisher, Prentice- Hall.

"Did you know that sexual intercourse burns up over 200 calories?" it asks. "That substituting sex for a 700- calorie midnight snack can eliminate 900 calories from your diet? That multiplying 900 by 7, you could drop 6,300 calories a week from your diet or 12,600 calories every two weeks?

And just think, there are 52 weeks in a year. You may end up a walking skeleton — but wow!

Even so, "Lincoln's Doctor's Dog" still holds the all - around formula honors ... until someone manages to bring in that third overriding interest of Americans. Eating.

We've already got the title: "The Gourmet's Sex and Diet Guide" — number one on the best- seller lists. On second thought, make that, "Lincoln's Doctor's Gourmet's Sex and Diet Guide."

A new way of rushing West Coast cranberries to Midwest points for blending and national distribution has been announced by officials of Ocean Spray Cranberries, Inc. and Burlington Northern. Quick-frozen cranberries are pneumatically blown into specially - equipped refrigerator cars and sucked out at destination by giant vacuums. Berries from bogs in Oregon, Washington, the Great Lakes area and New England states each have distinctive characteristics. Color is most important, because Ocean Spray uses no artificial coloring in its product lines. By blending berries from different sources, Ocean Spray achieves the most appealing color balance. Any way you look at it, the new technique means a better and more economical way to satisfy consumer tastes through innovative marketing, transportation and distribution. Well, now we know. Just like most everything else, there's a whole lot more to cranberry sauce than meets the eye!

RISING PENSIONS

In voting a 5.6 per cent cost of living increase for Social Security recipients, effective next July, Congress also approved a modest increase in the Social Security tax, effective next January. Instead of paying a maximum tax of $702 next year, an individual worker will pay $738 as a result of an increase of $600 in the 1974 earnings base of $12,000.

Perhaps a $36 a year tax increase is too small to quibble about, but the fact is that Congress did not have to raise the tax in order to pay for the cost of living increase. The retirement and disability trust funds were expected to increase by 3 billion dollars in fiscal 1974, bringing the holdings of those two funds to 46 billion dollars at the end of the fiscal year. Obviously there is enough cash available to pay the 3.2 billion dollar cost of living increase without raising the tax.

Why was it raised then? Because the Government borrows Social Security taxes from the Social Security Administration to pay day- to-day operating costs. If the payroll tax were not increased, the Government would have to give the Social Security Administration some of its money back and the budget deficit would increase by a corresponding amount. In effect, the Social Security tax has become a backdoor substitute for the more equitable income tax.

The cost of living increase could have been paid from the Social Security surplus without pushing the surplus to a dangerously low level, and that is what Congress should have done.

INDISPENSABLE MIDWIFE

Another instance of how technology can provide the answer to the problem of maintaining both a rising standard of living and an acceptable environment has appeared in an announcement of a government- industry project to accelerate research on the production of a clean burning equivalent of natural gas from coal. The announcement came from the American Gas Association. It reported the signing of an agreement between the AGA and the U.S. Department of the Interior.

According to a spokesman for the gas industry trade association, the agreement is designed "...to help alleviate the shortage of energy which now threatens the continued growth of the United States economy. The vast reserves of coal offer the most abundant source in the U.S. for new gas supplies. A successful coal gasification program would, in effect, mean a substantial increase in the nation's gas reserves. An entirely new industry based on a plentiful indigenous natural resource is now in sight..." Just how substantial would be the increase for the nation's energy reserves resulting from gasification of coal is indicated by the fact that presently known minable reserves of coal could supply some 11,000 trillion cubic feet of gas. When compared to the present annual consumption of 22 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in the U.S., the reserves of coal as a source of gas are impressive.

Necessity has always been the mother of invention. Nowhere is this more true than in the areas of environment and energy. But it should never be forgotten that technology is the indispensable midwife.

STENNIS CASE -- WE HAVE NO ANSWER

President Nixon probably expressed the frustration felt by many Americans when he called the mugging and shooting of Mississippi Sen. John Stennis "one of those senseless things that happen."

We may talk all we want about society's own culpability in crime because of its failure to eradicate poverty or racism or other factors that breed crime.

The fact remains that most crimes are not committed by middle-aged men who have tried to abide by the rules and who eventually turn to crime out of desperation and the desire to lash back at an unfair or prejudiced society. They are committed by young men, high school drop-outs for the most part, who have respected the opportunities society may have offered them.

The attack on Senator Stennis was particularly vicious. He offered no resistance to his two young assailants but was shot down anyway.

Just what did society, or fate, or anything else do to these two that explains or justifies this kind of barbarity?

Besides stricter controls to keep guns out of the hands of criminals, one is almost tempted to advocate that all decent citizens be armed and taught how to shoot.

Yet we know, even in our frustration, that neither this nor harsher prison sentences are any real answer to crime. If anything has been a failure, it is our penal system.

We have to continue to believe that somewhere in their childhoods, something could have been done to salvage the human potential of these young men and guide them into useful and productive lives, if someone — if society — had had the wisdom to know what.

Until we acquire that wisdom, we can only label their act another "one of those senseless things that happen" and react after the fact — catch them and others like them and put them away, where they can't hurt anybody else, at least for awhile."

OASIS IN AIR POLLUTION

A late air pollution study, conducted at Heathrow Airport in London, England, indicates there is less air pollution generated by airport activity than would be generated by an average urban development covering the same area. The report notes that, "far from adding significantly to the pollution levels of adjacent areas, the airport dilutes pollution from surrounding districts and reduces concentrations of pollutants below the levels which might be expected if an average urban development took its place."

Mr. Joseph B. Hartranft, Jr., president of the 160,000 member Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, says the open space of an airport for small airplanes can act as an "oasis" in urban air pollution. Other authorities have observed that the open spaces of an airport can be designed to accommodate such things as parks and picnic facilities. Moreover, plane watching has held a fascination for the public since the days of Kitty Hawk. The sense of freedom that even spectators can gain from gazing across the expanse of an airport and watching planes landing and taking off is somehow symbolic of man's highest aspirations. The community with an airport oasis enjoys an environmental as well as an economic, asset.

A CLEAR NEED

Taxpayers should look with great skepticism upon proposals to nationalize U. S. railroads. The cost of following such a course in the United States could be unimaginably high -- if government operation of railroads in other countries can be taken as a criterion.

Late figures concerning the Japanese National Railways are more or less typical. Japan is credited with having one of the finest passenger transport systems on Earth. Yet her nationalized railroads, in the last fiscal year, showed a $780 million loss. Turning all railroad operations in the United States over to government could prove disasterous for over- burdened taxpayers. For this reason, those authorities who have studied transportation, and especially the railroads most thoroughly, strongly recommend modernizing national regulatory policies and adopting other measures that will encourage the traditional initiative and resourcefulness of private enterprise. A committee report on a staff study for the Senate Commerce Committee observed that, "At present the regulatory process is unsympathetic to innovation, especially in rates and marketing concepts ... Steps must be taken to create a climate that is more cordial to innovation and that both creates and rewards vigorous competition ..."

In other words, what railroads and the transportation industry need most is a chance to utilize the best features of the free enterprise system that have been denied them. There is no more time for rigid government regulation and transportation policies that harken back to a day when the rails were the only mode of transport -- except for the horse.

PROPAGANDA FOR MAO

U.S. magazines and newspapers frequently carry glowing stories about life in Communist China, implying that Mao Tse- tung has fashioned a utopia. Jean Jeffries Davison, a newspaper columnist, has compared these accounts with similar Western press reports of Stalin's Russia in the 1930s, when pro-communist apologists were making a great effort to paint that regime in rosy colors.

Recently columnist James Reston wrote of China: "This country is engaged in one vast cooperative barn- raising. They work at it night and day with a pride and persistence that are astonishing."

Twenty- eight years ago, Louis Fischer wrote in The Nation: "The Soviet Union is overflowing with energy...The population is full of confidence, enthusiasm and faith in Russia's future."

An Australian professor recently wrote in a U.S. magazine that Westerners "should be flattered that China went straight to the heart of Western civilization and plucked the flower she glimpsed there: the idea that people are sacred."

In the 1930s a U.S. professor wrote that Russia was "building a great community not less democratic in its values than those of Western Europe and America and not less devoted to those values which liberal Western culture has long cherished."

The happy accounts of life in the Soviet Union under Stalin were believed by many at the time, yet now even those friendly to the Kremlin admit that Stalin practiced brutal terrorism and police state tactics. Hopefully, it will take less than 30 years for U.S. citizens to realize that the glowing pictures of Red China are false and that the Chinese people suffer grievously under communsim. HLH

Positively No Strike?

No Longer Militants: Auto Workers Basically Seeking Early Retirement, Some More Cash

DETROIT- On every story there are the romanticists and the reporters. They're here to cover the biggest show in town--- the United Auto Workers Union negotiations with the Big Three car makers. But the show is not a revival despite the romanticists' search for old revolutionary fervor, despite the quest by some for familiar corners of ancient sit-down strikes, despite the eagerness to detect socio-economic dreamboat militancy among younger rank and file.

What the hard- nosed reporter finds is that the auto workers now want earlier retirement; 30- year- and- out after 50 years of age instead of 56; more time off, more holiday payment, more week-length shutdowns, such as the time between Christmas and New Year's which they now have; shorter work weeks and fewer work minutes to the hour.

It's the romanticists, the Ph.D. theme- searching university people, the U. S. Labor Dept. specialists who love those fact- finding trips abroad who talk about auto plant "job enrichment, job dissatisfaction, and the end to assembly lines"--- which would just about put America second to Taipei in the production of autos.

Ask virtually any UAW leader and he'll tell you his followers haven't come to him with complainst about job ennui. They want a dental plan. They want more money.

And they don't want to strike--- regardless of what is said by the hot militant Paul Schrade whose fame came from almost being assassinated the grim night Bobby Kennedy was murdered in the Los Angeles hotel kitchen right alongisde him. Schrade, then head of the UAW California region, got creased by one bullet.

From the board rooms of both the union and the corporate establishment, the word is there isn't a 100 to 1 chance for a strike. Why should there be?

American auto workers and their "sister and brother" workers in the agricultural implement plants are the best paid in the world--- and in American industry on a mass average.

You will in the next few months, leading up to the Sept. 14 contract expiration deadline, read of all sorts of intricate demands on a national basis. And judging from the local demands from 146 union locals dealing with General Motors in 1970, there must be as many today--- some 39,000.

You'll read much about the fight over the corporations' right to order workers to put in compulsory overtime. And about the unionists' resentment against such authority.

But with as many as 21 General Motors assembly plants depending on steady production from one stamping plant, GM (and for the same reasons Ford and Chrysler) won't surrender this management prerogative, through American Motors has a voluntary overtime system.

The big issue will be money and health coverage and early retirement--- perhaps with the right to return to work before a certain age and elapsed time.

Informed circles here, which heard by the grapevine that President Nixon had taped his economic policies for possible broadcast, do not see any stumbling bloc in Phase Four.

Their educated guess is that this fall the "embattled" parties will agree on about a dollar an hour per man wage increase over three years--- with proportionate shading if the traditional three- year contract period is modified.

That's in cash. That's atop the better than $5 an hour now averaged by the auto worker who actually costs the companies about $8 an hour with fringes such as astronomical hospitalization bills thrown in.

It could be more--- depending on what happens to the cost of living percentages in the next phases.

Actually, the literate worker knows his industry is up for grabs these days. The $8 an hour cost per American worker is anywhere from 33 1/3 to 66 2/3 per cent higher than auto labor costs anywhere in this world. And soon enough cars will be assembled in Asia by workers earning as little as the equivalent of $10 a week.

Yet the auto labor cost in the U. S. has risen at the rate of 10 per cent per year. Just a statistic? No. In the savage battle for customers, foreign car producers could cripple our industry. And the auto worker has learned this well, as has his brother in the steel mills.

GM's 450,000 hourly rated employes know what their benefits are--- and the company hasn't hesitated to tell the story to them in some sophisticated "communications" material.

They know they each cost the company some $16,000 a year in cash and benefits. They know the average hourly rated worker, during 1972, got the equivalent of some six weeks of wages for vacation, holiday and personal absence pay--- in addition to his pay for time actually on the job.

They know GM pays an average of some $66 a month for each hourly employe and retiree for hospital, medical, surgical and prescription drugs coverage. This came to some $400 million in 1972.

And they know their last 1970 strike cost their union well over $160 million. And they had to hock their national headquarters.

And word has filtered down they will average what the Teamsters and other unions got--- and the others got anywhere from 8 to 9 per cent increase when you do the arithmetic.

There will be much play-acting in this negotiation involving some 700,000 workers. There may even be an old- fashioned second- act climax. But a strike is a 100 to 1 shot.

This is 1973-- not 1937. The workers know what they want and they don't want to tear the place apart getting it. They never had it so good.

Since a terrarium is virtually a closed container, the water simply recycles itself. Just stick it on the windowsill and watch it grow.

Hah!

There are umpteen different kinds of terrariums — terraria? Some are easy to eliminate. They cost too much — up to $85 for a big glass bowl and a handful of dirt.

Having narrowed the price range I discovered other problems. Did I want a spherical terrarium or an egg-shaped cone? How big an air hole should there be at the top? What kind of drainage stones should there be at the bottom?

The problem was solved by the discovery of a kit that contained everything from dirt to seeds — a major factor since most of the terrariums did not include any sort of plants.

Unfortunately, the six- page instruction booklet belied the claims of simplicity. One kind of seed had to be soaked for 24 hours before planting; the soil had to be prepared with exactly the right amount of water at exactly the right temperature. The seeds, none of which was bigger than a pin prick, had to be pressed into the soil just so, then covered with another layer of dirt — not too thick, mind you — and resprinkled.

After scurrying about for measuring cup, thermometer and plenty of paper towel to clean up the mess I was sure to make, I approached the terrarium bowl with the care of a surgeon. I doled out two cups of 80- degree water, pressed the seeds carefully into the soil, discovering in the process that it's very difficult to tell a seed from a piece of dirt.

Finally the terrarium was planted and placed on the wondowsill. But wait. The instruction booklet said the temperature had to be at least 70 to 80 degress. Out came the thermometer which registered 88 — uncomfortable for me, but at least the seeds should be happy.

I watched and waited. The instructions said ungerminated seeds should be watered with one tablespoon of 80- degree water. It didn't say how often, but every other day seemed to be a good compromise.

When I woke up in the morning, I'd rush to peer at the terrarium. Coming home in the evening, I'd scurry to see if I could spot anything growing.

Exactly eight days after my initial foray into gardening, patience was rewarded. Two tiny green sprouts appeared.

Triumph!

But would they grow? Did they need fertilizer? Were they getting too much sun? Should they be rewatered?

The sprouts haven't died yet. Of course they haven't grown very much either. But I think I've spotted a little bit of green on my thumb.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

The Colson- Hunt Tape

WASHINGTON— Not long after the November election, Watergate ringleader E. Howard Hunt telephoned Charles Colson in the White House and put the squeeze on him for money.

"The cheapest commodity available is money," said Hunt, reminding the presidential trouble- shooter that "we're protecting the guys who are really responsible."

Hunt complained about the paralysis inside the White House over Watergate. "I would hope," he said, "that...the people who were paralyzed initially by this within the White House could now start to give some creative thinking to the affair and some affirmative action, for Chrissake."

"That's true," agreed Colson.

'INITIAL TERROR'

"I think now is the time for it," pressed Hunt. "We expect it now, and we want it. The election is out of the way, the initial terror of a number of people has subsided...A few good people ought to really be able to concentrate on this and get the G-- d--- thing out of the way for once and for all...I don't want to bore you with what it's been like, but it hasn't been pleasant for any of us."

"J---- Ch---, I know it," Colson symphathized. "I hope you're doing some writing to keep yourself busy."

"Oh, I am," said the spy-novelist, "I don't know if anything will ever come of it, but it's a good-- it keeps my mind from my plight, let's put it that way."

Then Hunt got down to the purpose of his call. "One of the initial outputs that I have read about," he said, "is that while this is done by a bunch of wild-assed guys...well, that's fine for we're protecting the guys who are really responsible...and, of course, that's a continuing requirement.

'NOW'S THE TIME'

"But at the same time, this is a two- way street. As I say and as I said before, we think now is the time when the move should be made and surely the cheapest commodity available is money.

"These lawyers have not been paid: there are large sums of money outstanding. That's the principal thing. Living allowances which are due again on the 31st of the month, we want that stuff well in hand for some months in advance. I think these are all reasonable requests. They're all promised in advance and reaffirmed from time to time to my attorney and so forth. So, in turn, I've been giving commitments to the people who look to me."

"I'm reading you," replied Colson. "You don't have to be more specific."

"I don't want to belabor it."

'BETTER OFF'

"It isn't a question of that," said Colson. "It's just that the less specifics I know, the better off I am-- we are, you are."

Hunt went on to say that Kenneth Parkinson, an attorney for the President's campaign committee, "is out of town until next Monday, at which time a memorandum is going to be laid on him and he is going to be made aware."

Then Hunt asked Colson: "Would you be willing to receive a memorandum from me?...I think it might help you."

"Except," objected Colson, "there are things you might not want to tell me."

"There's really nothing I don't want to tell you," said Hunt. "I would think you could receive this memorandum, read it and destroy it."

"Nope," Colson rejected the suggestion.

"You couldn't do that?" asked Hunt.

NO PERJURY PLEASE

"Nope," Colson said again. "The reason I can't is the same reason your letter to me, when I got that and when I was asked by federal authorities had I had any communication and I said yes, I've received this letter and here it is...You can't get in the position where you're perjuring."

"Of course not," Hunt agreed. "And I'm afraid John Mithcell already has done."

"The problem is, you see, I don't want to get in the position of knowing something that I don't now know." Colson emphasized, "for the reason that I want to be perfectly free to help you and the only way I can help you is to remain as completely unknowing as I am."

The two men then got into a discussion of the effect of Watergate on the presidential election.

DIVERTED DEMOCRATS

"It kept them from the real issues," suggested Hunt, referring to the futile attempt by the Democrats to raise the Watergate scandal as an issue in the campaign.

"Well," responded Colson, "I've always thought when I write my memoirs of this campaign that I'm going to say that the Watergate was brilliantly conceived as an escapade that would divert the Democrats' attention from the real issues and, therefore, permitted us to win a landslide that we probably wouldn't have had otherwise...."

"Whether you believe it or not," said Hunt.

"No, listen," protested Colson, "I think there's a good bit of validity to that."

"I do, too," agreed Hunt.

"Dumb bastards were on an issue," said Colson, "the public couldn't care less about."

Footnote: The prosecutors have traced huge sums of money, which were delivered to Hunt and his late wife in $100 bills. The prosecutors have evidence that Hunt, instead of passing it out to his fellow Watergate defendants, kept most of it himself. It's estimated that he still has more than $100,000 of the Watergate cash stashed away.

Minister speaks to Kiwanis

The Rev. Grady Etheridge, pastor of Miner Baptist Church, was guest speaker at Tuesday night's Kiwanis Club meeting at Ramada Inn.

Don Pratt, vice president, presided in the absence of president Claude Benney. Ron Bloemer had charge of the program and introduced the Rev. Etheridge.

The Rev. Mr. Etheridge, who spoke on the topic, "Success", told members that success is not someone who has worked and accomplished a particular goal, but is one who has a goal and is working in that direction and is happy.

He went on to say that success comes in five areas: financial, family, physical, mental and spiritual. "Life is a hub and these five areas are the spokes," according to the Rev. Mr. Etheridge. "Time should be given equally to each spoke.

"The three keys to success," he added, "are to recognize that God is the source of all supplies, sowing and reaping, and to expect good things to happen."

David R. Schmieg, manager of Southwestern Bell, and Roy White, manager of Terminix, were guests of the club. Schmieg, White and the Rev. Mr. Etheridge were also approved as new members.

The Cape Girardeau club has invited the Sikeston Kiwanis to attend its meeting July 26 to hear Gov. Christopher Bond speak.

Plans were announced for the annual divisional picnic to be held Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the home of the Mr. and Mrs. George Kirk. This is the 34th year the picnic has been held at their home. This will be a division caucus to select a lieutenant governor nominee. Benney and Pratt were elected as club delegates.

The district convention will be held at Hot Springs, Ark., beginning Aug. 25. Benney, Pratt and Bob Wright were elected delegates and Paul Schorey and Bob Meyers as alternates.

Charlie Johnson was elected as director to replace Joe Williams who is moving out of town.

Judges named for election

NEW MADRID — Judges for a special election to be held in New Madrid Aug. 7 were named in a special meeting of the board of aldermen Tuesday afternoon, according to Mrs. Pauline K. Allen, city clerk.

Named to be in charge of the election were Mrs. Margaret Boyd, Mrs. Bonnie Boyd, Mrs. Agnes Graham and Mrs. Elsie Hampton for Ward One; Mrs. Ola Lewis, Mrs. Carrie Shaver, Mrs. Walter Higgerson Jr. and Mrs. Lucille Parks of Ward Two; and Mrs. Mary Meier, Mrs. Helen Mahew, Mrs. Algie Phillips and Mrs. Joy Hendricks for Ward Three.

The election is to test the sense of the voters on whether Federated Electric Cooperative should be granted an easement over certain land of Associated Electric and use some of the facilities of Associated in construction of a second generating plant at St. Jude Industrial Park.

It is necessary that the proposal be approved in order that the new plant can be built. As in the case of the initial plant, there is no cost to New Madrid or its citizens. The first was built by issuance of revenue bonds and the second will be financed by Federated Electric through their own loans.

A two- thirds majority of those voting in the special election is necessary for passage of the proposal.

Scientist named to Scott SCS

BENTON — Bill Night, a soil scientist for the Soil Conservation Service, has moved to Scott County to begin work on a standard soil survey for the entire county.

The Scott County Soil and Water Conservation District Board plans to hire a soil scientist for the district to work with Knight on the survey.

K. M. Streeter, chairman of the county board, said a district soil scientist will be hired as soon as enough donations are received to cover the district's share of the salary for a district employe. The Scott County Court has agreed to pay the remaining portion of the salary for a district soil scientist.

Knight's home town is Keytesville. He has worked in Nevada, Mo., for the past year for the Soil Conservation Service.

He is a 1971 graduate of University of Missouri where he received a masters degree in agronomy after receiving a bachelor of science degree from the same school. He also took post graduate courses at Oklahoma State in Stillwater, Okla.

Knight and his wife Betty live at Ferrell's Trailer Court near Benton. Members of the Christian Church, they have no children.

Knight will work under the supervision of Burton Brown, who will be party leader for the progressive soil survey. Knight will be stationed in Benton until the survey is completed.

Risco awarded $73,420

RISCO — Rep. Bill D. Burlison, 10th District Democrat, has announced that the Environmental Protection Agency has awarded a $73,420 grant to the City of Risco for use in the construction of a new waste stabilization lagoon, a lift station with force main and two interceptor sewers.

The Cape Girardeau congressman noted that the grant is made under the waste treatment works program of the Environmental Protection Agency. The total cost of the project is estimated at $112,000.

2 awarded scholarships

CAPE GIRARDEAU— Two Bootheel area students are among the 25 who have been awarded Gramling Scholarships for the coming academic year at Southeast Missouri State University.

The Bootheel scholarship winners include: Larry Howard Ferrell of Benton Route One and Deborah Carol Bullington of 1510 Ward, Caruthersville.

The scholarships, provided by a fund set up by the late Earl G. Gramling, are awarded to students primarily interested in the study of history, government or political science. Gramling was a prominent businessman in Cape Girardeau from 1902 until his death in 1965.

Recipients may be beginning freshmen, transfer students, graduate students or undergraduates already enrolled at the university, but in all cases they must be of good moral character and in need of financial aid.

Under terms of the endowment, the grants may be up to $500 an academic year, but the awards are generally less than the maximum, enabling more students to be assisted.

Risco notes

RISCO-- Tole painting, an annual club picnic and a "left- over bazaar" were discussed Thursday by the Risco Rural Independent Club during their July afternoon meeting.

Mrs. P. C. Crouthers was hostess and Mrs. Mike McGee, president, presided.

After discussing old business, the group held an auction of bazaar items left from the bazaar booth at the Fourth of July picnic.

Plans were formulated for the annual club picnic to be held Aug. 9 at Sam A. Baker Park. The group will meet at 9 a.m. on the school parking lot blacktop and depart together.

Mrs. Royce Fortner was a guest of the club and presented an interesting and informative program on "Tole Painting". She displayed several items of the art which she had done.

During the social period, the group sang "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. Roland Byrd, a member.

Actors score twice

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "That Certain Summer," a dramatic film for television produced by Richard Levinson and William Link, has won Best Film and Best Actor Awards in the fifth annual balloting of more than 1,000 television critics and editors by TV SCOUT.

Hal Holbrook, who portrayed a homosexual with a teen-age son, received the Best Actor Award for his role in the film presented Nov. 1, on ABC-TV.

Best Actress balloting resulted in a tie this year with Helen Hayes and Cloris Leachman sharing honors for their performances in "The Snoop Sisters" (NBC) and "A Brand New Life" (ABC), respectively.

A record number of 94 films were produced for television this year. Editors and critics were asked by the newspaper preview service to nominate their top five choices in the categories of Best Film, Actor and Actress.

Following tabulation of the nominating ballots by the TV SCOUT staff, headed by editor Joan Crosby in the service's Hollywood headquarters, official ballots were mailed to the participating critics and editors. These included the more than 200 subscribers to the TV SCOUT preview service, subscribers to Newspaper Enterprise Association, of which TV SCOUT is a division, and to major metropolitan newspapers.

Nearly all daily newspapers in the United States participated in the balloting.

Fur trends studied

NEW YORK — (NEA) — If anyone knows what the newest fur trends are it's Ben Kahn, admittedly the king of furs.

"The newest furs," said Ernest Graf, president, "are the short jackets—chubbies, battle-jackets, ski jackets and evening shorties. Also the floor-length cape or coat."

One cape in the collection is a down-to-the-floor number in beige chinchilla that is breathtaking.

'She' is a lineperson

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Barney loves being outdoors. That's why she took a job as a telephone lineman.

She?

Yes. Barney is 19-year-old Rosanna Johnson, who pumped gasoline before becoming a line-person for Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Miss Johnson maintains that she is not a liberationist and her inclination toward "typical male jobs" was influenced by her home in Iowa Falls.

"In our neighborhood there were four boys and me," she pointed out.

Her male counterparts call her by her nickname, Barney, and don't give her any hassels, Miss Johnson says.

"They hold the door for me every once in awhile but that's about it," the 5-3 linewoman said.

Her foreman, Larry Hawbaker, said, "I treat her just like a guy. That was the understanding when she began."

Miss Johnson, who said she "just couldn't work inside," does not recommend her job to just anyone and does not consider herself exceptional.

"I just know I can do the job, so why not?"

Alice Shy, left, is treating Bonnie Lindsey to a complete facial, such as the one to be given as door prize at the Beta Sigma Phi fall fashion show Aug. 6 at 8 p.m. in the American Legion building. Club members Paula Huckaba, second from right, and Louanna Bixler look on as Mrs. Shy explains her procedures. Tickets for the fashion show may be purchased from any club member.

Fashion designers step back in time

ROME (AP) — Italian fashion designers are stepping back a few decades in their fall and winter collections. Some hover between the 1950s and the 1940s while others are going back as far as 1920.

This trend is most evident in skirt lengths. On the second day of the fashion showings Monday, hemlines were decidedly longer than in recent years. All covered the knee and some reached down almost as far as the ankle.

One designer brought back the hour- glass shape, emphasizing shoulders and marking waists while the skirts narrowed below the knee.

Suits were an important part of every collection and sometimes came in three pieces. Different woolen fabrics were then used with houndstooth patterns for jackets, stripes for vests and checks for skirts. Colors were dark and subdued.

Di Lazzaro featured waterproof capes and velvet dresses with cutouts in the shape of tear drops.

Evening dresses often combined lace over silk or satin, creating a draped effect. Others were highlighted with silver or gold threads.

The designer also edged the narrow, plunging neckline with multicolored feathers.

Evening trousers were present in the shape of baggy Zouave pants worn with gold booties and a flowing hostess gown in printed chiffon.

Ann Landers

Hitchhikers now play money game

Dear Ann Landers: Since you pull no punches and deal with every conceivable aspect of human behavior, I hope you will print this letter as a warning to others.

Yesterday I picked up a nice- looking, neatly dressed young lad who was thumbing a ride at a busy intersection. He appeared to be about 15 years old. Two minutes after he got into the car he said, "If you don't give me a couple of dollars I'll make a scene at the next intersection and swear you tried to molest me."

I'm a prominent man in this city and I can't afford any trouble, so I gave the kid two dollars and let him out at the next stop light.

I told my story to friends at lunch this afternoon and one of them had the identical experience just last week. Please pass the word, Ann. Thumbs down on hitch-hikers.--- No Name In Cleveland

Dear N.N.: I've been passing that word for a long time. And now I'd like to pass another word. So long as people like you knuckle under and allow yourselves to be shaken down, this sort of racket will flourish. Every person who comes across with "a few dollars" makes the game juicier. You should have told that little creep to get lost.

Dear Ann: Most of your medical consultants are men. I'll bet on it. So how can they understand a woman's sexual feelings (or lack of them) after 50? No matter how good a physician is at diagnosis, surgery or treatment, a male simply cannot fully comprehend what happens to a woman's sexual appetite after she has gone through the menopause or had a hysterectomy.

It makes me furious when I read comments from physicians who insist a woman should be as good as ever (some said better) after she has experienced the change of life or had her reproductive organs removed. What do THEY know?--- Faithful Wisconsin Reader.

Dear Faith: Your assumption that the only way a person can know anything is by experiencing it first- hand is fallacious.

A gynecologist who has treated hundreds (maybe thousands) of women is infinitely more knowledgeable on this subject that one lone female who has only her own experience to go by.

The best authorities, of course, are the women themselves--- not just ONE woman, but large numbers. This is where the doctors get their information. Every gynecologist I have consulted says a woman's sex life should NOT be less interesting after menopause or a hysterectomy. In some cases, medication is needed to replace the lost estrogen. Her doctor can determine whether or not she needs this replacement.

The woman who says she lost all interest in sex after menopause or surgery probably didn't have much interest in it before.

Dear Ann Landers: It makes me furious when people who don't agree with your advice write you absolutely insulting letters. What is the matter with them? Don't they realize you spend a fortune on the long- distance telephone researching your answers and that you have the best contacts in the country? Why don't they understand that you don't inject yourself into people's lives? They ASK you for advice. This letter is to let you know that while I don't agree with everything you say I respect your viewpoint and I think you do a splendid job.--- Hawaii

Dear H.: Thanks for those kind words. Mean letters don't bother me. Invariably, the people who write them are mad at someone else.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze And You--- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35c in coin and a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope to this newspaper with your request.

Ag assistant reacts to prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz's new special assistant for consumer affairs has reacted to the highest consumer food prices in 20 years by reordering her priorities in the grocery store.

Nancy H. Steorts, 36, said in an interview after her appointment was announced Monday that she is "putting my emphasis now on the quality foods" when shopping for herself, her department- store- executive husband and their 10- year-old daughter.

More of her grocery bill goes to "good meat and good produce ... rather than our convenience foods, snacks and things like that."

Mrs. Steorts, who lives in suburban Sumner, Md., comes to the consumer-affairs post — which pays $23,088 a year — with a background in retail merchandizing, fashions and public relations.

Mrs. Steorts, a 1959 graduate of Syracuse University in her home town, said she doesn't agree that consumers are to blame for high prices. But she did emphasize her view of an urgent "need to communicate better with the consumer."

Personally, she said, "I am not one that would have participated" in the meat boycott this spring. The boycott was organized by housewives, predominantly, to protest rising costs of beef and other popular meats.

"There are other ways to effectively show disapproval," she said, but added that the boycott had an advantage in bringing food prices "more to the public mind."

Who will challenge Dolphins?

By CARTER FLETCHER
(The order of appearance is the projected finish in the division)

1. Miami Dolphins

The Dolphins have a bright future; they have only one slight weakness, defensive right tackle, and great depth. Their biggest problem will be staying happy and hungry after their phenomenal undefeated season last year. The draft brought them little, and trades netted only Ron Sellers, wide receiver from Dallas. Their offense, with Bob Griese's impeccable play- calling and the tandem of Csonka, Morris, and Kiick, is awesome. Their defense operates with machine- like precision, ready to pounce on the opposition's mistakes. The only question mark in Miami is who will challenge the Dolphins?

2. New York Jets

Maybe the New York Jets? With healthy running backs, Joe Namath might be able to make a run to Miami; last year, Joe ran out of runners, and even then completed passes. New faces abound at the Jet camp at Hofstra University: Richard Neal (defensive end, New Orleans), Delles Howell (defensive back, New Orleans), Margene Adkins (wide receiver, New Orlenas), Julian Fagan (punter, New Orleans), and Mike Adamle (running back, Kansas City). The draft brought in flashy Burgess Owens of Miami U. and two linebackers, Bill Ferguson (San Diego State) and Bruce Bannon (Penn State). They'll need all the defensive help they can get; the line and the linebackers will be suspect, and opposing coaches will probably give these areas quite a going-over before the year is out. The offense had better produce points since the defense will probably allow the other team quite a few scores.

3. Buffalo Bills

The Bills could return to respectability this year, but not to the play- offs. And they won't get that far unless they get consistent quarterbacking from the previously inconsistent Dennis Shaw. The make-shift offensive line which convoyed O. J. Simpson to the NFL rushing title will be helped by the return of Irv Goode and Bruce Jarvis from the injured list and by the Bills' Nos. 1 and 2 draft choices, Paul Seymour (tackle, Michigan) and Joe deLamielleure (guard, Michigan State). Coach Lou Saban traded away his two best linebackers and only replaced one: he'll have to rely on some rookies unless he finds another trade. This situation goes on top of the fact that the Buffalo defensive line causes little fear anywhere. Lack of a good pass rush is going to put extra pressure on an already over- loaded secondary; the ensuing short circuit is going to hurt Saban in the won-lost column.

4. Baltimore Colts

Hopefully, General Manager Joe Thomas still has the golden touch he used to make the Miami Dolphins into a super team; he had better, because Baltimore is ready to crucify him. A man who sends Johnny Unitas packing had best be able to back up his actions. Glaring weaknesses, however, show in the Colt unit. Difficulty at running the ball has been a problem in Baltimore the last few years, and things look to get worse before there is daylight again. Thomas went out and got nearly a whole new offensive line while drafting a new quarterback, Bert Jones of LSU. Jones isn't Unitas (even a 40- year-old Unitas), and neither is Marty Domres, the man who benched Johnny U. last season; but that's all right, because there are really no good receivers on the club save tight end Tom Mitchell. On defense, there are also some holes due to trades; gone are linemen Billy Newsome and Fred Miller and safety Jerry Logan. This means that new head coach Howard Schellenberger will have to depend on the return of Bubba Smith, who is playing out his option, and two rookies, Joe Ehrmann (Syracuse) and Mike Barnes (Miami); the pass rush doesn't portend greatness. The fine set of linebackers (Mike Curtis, Ted Hendricks, and Ray May) are the survivors of a onece effective unit; it remains to be seen if the Colts can muster any sort of unity in the coming campaign.

5. New England Patriots

Well, it's new coach time in New England; this year, it's Chuck Fairbanks, former head coach at Oklahoma. Whether Chuck intends to try the Wishbone in pro ball is still unknown; when and if he does, he will find that it is a waste of talent, since throwing the ball should be the Pats forte. Jim Plunkett has good receivers, no runners, and no protection from the onrushing linemen. Help could be coming; the draft brought in three good offensive linemen, including big John Hannah of Alabama, and a big fullback, Sam Cunningham of Southern Cal. Now if there were just somebody to use Cunningham's blocking abilities; the best runner on the team, Carl Garrett, is gone to Chicago. The defensive picture shows a weak line, a linebacking corps that will be helped by the addition of Edgar Chandler from Buffalo, and a secondary which was likewise helped by the addition of the experience of Herb Adderley from Dallas. Inexperience on behalf of the players and the coach will plague the Patriots all season, and the only threat offered by this New England team is that the law of averages ought to give them a victory or two.

Cards lose first

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I've always believed that August and September are the crucial months of the season," says Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell. Whitey Lockman of the Chicago Cubs isn't even thinking that far ahead.

"Losing six in a row is not what I consider real adversity," Lockman said Wednesday after his Cubs lost 8-5 to San Diego in Chicago and nearly handed their first-place berth in the National League East to St. Louis. "The Cardinals are hot, but by the time we play them here the last weekend of July, we might be six or seven games ahead of them."

The Cubs are still a razorthin half-game ahead of St. Louis, thanks to the San Francisco Giants, who snapped the Cards' five-game winning streak with an 8-3 victory.

In the rest of the National League, Pittsburgh downed Los Angeles 3-2, the New York Mets lambasted Atlanta 12-2, Cincinnati beat Philadelphia 7-3 and Montreal edged Houston 3-2 in 10 innings.

Giants 8, Cardinals 3

The Cards were victimized by San Francisco's 14-hit attack. Gary Matthews led it with a two-run homer and a run-scoring double and Tito Fuentes kicked in with a pair of RBI singles in the Giants' 8-3 victory.

But St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst was hardly pessimistic after failing to take over first place, recalling that the Cards tried and failed four times before finally getting to the .500 break-even point.

Pirates 3, Dodgers 2

Stargell's 27th home run of the season in the sixth inning snapped a tie, gave Pittsburgh a 3-2 decision and halted Los Angeles' winning streak at seven games.

He had a perfect four-for-four night with two singles, a double and the home run.

Mets 12, Braves 2

Rusty Staub led the Mets' 15hit, 12-2 stampeding of the Braves with five runs batted in on a pair of homers, his ninth and 10th of the season, and a bases-loaded walk.

John Milner kicked in with a three-run homer as Tom Seaver five-hit Atlanta.

Reds 7, Phillies 3

Andy Kosco had a hand in both of the rallies that carried Cincinnati past the Steve Carlton and the Phillies 7-3. Successive doubles by Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Dave Concepcion gave the Reds two quick runs in the sixth inning and, after a walk, Kosco gave them three more with his second home run.

Expos 3, Astros 2

The Expos' Ron Hunt, who has a habit of getting hit by pitches, did it again—for the 22nd time this year and the (ouch!) 225th time of his blackand-blue career. It happened leading off the 10th inning against Houston's Cecil Upshaw.

Upshaw wasn't around long enough to get upset. Juan Pizarro took the mound immediately—and a few minutes later, with Hunt on third, unleashed a wild pitch that let Hunt come home with the decisive run.

In the American League it was, Boston 6, Chicago 1; Minnesota 3, New York 0; Detroit 14, Kansas City 4; Milwaukee 3, Texas 0; Baltimore 5, Oakland 2 and, in 11 innings, Cleveland 10, California 8.

Wise named

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson, has shown his respect for the Los Angeles pitching staff in making his selections for a pitching staff for the National League All-Star team.

Starters Claude Osteen, 11-6, and Don Sutton, 12-5, and reliever Jim Brewer were among the eight pitchers Anderson selected for the National League All-Star team that will face the American League next Tuesday night in Kansas City.

Anderson's other All-Star pitchers will be Jack Billingham of the Reds, Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, Wayne Twitchell of Philadelphia, Rick Wise of St. Louis and Dave Giusti of Pittsburg.

Seaver was picked to play in the midsummer baseball classic a seventh straight year. Osteen and Sutton are the only other 1973 selections who have seen All-Star Game action.

Anderson chose six righthanders and just two lefties— Osteen and Brewer.

Anderson will announce the remainder of the National League squad Friday. League batting leader Manny Mota of the Dodgers is among the players hoping for admission to the team then.

Big name pitchers left off the team this year include seventime All-Star Bob Gibson of St. Louis, Ferguson Jenkins of the Chicago Cubs and Steve Carlton of Philadelphia.

SPORTS

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Golden Blades of the World Hockey Association announced they have finalized working agreements with two farm teams, the Syracuse Blazers of the North American Hockey League and the Winston-Salem Twins of the Southern Hockey League.

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — World track record holders Don Quarrie and Marilyn Neufville as well as Byron Dice and Audrey Reid have been included in the Jamaica Amateur Athletic Association's team that will participate in the Central American and Caribbean athletic championships.

Twenty-two athletes will make the trip to compete in the championships in Venezuela July 26-29.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee has approved a bill prohibiting television blackouts of professional football games if all tickets have been sold 48 hours in advance.

The measure, which also applies to professional baseball, basketball and hockey games, would be in effect for one year after enactment by Congress.

Most complaints about television blackouts have come from football fans unable to tune in on games played in their home towns. National Football League rules permit teams to ban telecast within a 75-mile radius of a game's location.

TENNIS

BROOKLINE, Mass. — Third- seeded Marty Riessen of Amelia Island, Fla., eliminated Paul Gerken of East Norwalk, Conn. 6-4, 7-5 and advanced to the third round of the $60,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

GOLF

HOUSTON — University of Texas junior Ben Crenshaw carded a six-under- par 65 and took a two- stroke lead in the first round of the 67th annual Southern Amateur Golf Championship.

Blaylock leads league

NOVATO, Calif.-- Gary Blaylock, Jr., is off to a big start for the Batavia Mets in the New York-- Pennsylvania class A minor league after joining them a month ago.

The husky, 6- foot- 3 Malden, Mo., athlete, leads the league in home runs with four and runs batted in with 17. Blaylock is batting .328 with 19 hits in 58 times at bat, scoring 14 runs and hitting four doubles and a triple.

Both Southeast Missouri pitchers in the minors, Greg Buys of Kennett and Randy Smith of Arbyrd, were winners last week.

Buys, playing in the Eastern AA league for the West Haven Yanks, worked 12 innings, allowing 17 hits and four walks while fanning eight. His earned run mark fell to 5.52. On the season the former Missouri high school shot put champion has a 3- 3 record with 31 innings of work, allowing 25 hits and 21 walks while fanning 24.

Smith went six innings, allowing 10 hits and three walks while fanning seven for the Idaho Falls Angels in the Pioneer Rookie League. The former Three Rivers Community College Raider standout has worked 20 innings so far, allowing 24 hits and eight walks while fanning 23.

Jackson, Chaffee romp

CHARLESTON-- Tri- County and Sikeston square off this evening at 7 p.m. in a battle of unbeatens in the double elimination Jr. Babe Ruth district tournament.

Wednesday night Jackson and Chaffee recorded romps to remain alive in the losers bracket. Jackson made easy work of East Prairie, 25- 7 while Chaffee crushed New Madrid 18- 7.

Wessell hit the first home of the tournament, connecting for 335- foot shot for Jackson, who collected 27 hits to back Nieswonger's effort. East Prairie managed five hits but turned in 19 errors.

Whitaker picked up the win for Chaffee, limiting New Madrid to six hits. Woolsey was the loser.

Jackson and Chaffee square off in a losers bracket game tonight at 9 p.m.

Benton streaks on

The Benton Aces raced to their ninth Southeast Missouri Softball League victory in a row Wednesday night, handing Vanduser a 10- 3 setback while running their record to 11- 7 on the season.

Ray Scherer set Vanduser down on five hits while his teammates backed his effort with 13. Mike Gadbury had three hits for Benton's leading effort. Norman Morgan connected for a circuit clout against Scherer.

Oran and New Hamburg split a doubleheader with Hamburg winning the opening bout 5- 0 and losing the second 5- 4.

Junior Kern mastered a four hitter in posting the shutout win, getting a homer from Mike Seyer to back his performance.

Don Robert, loser of the opening contest, got credit for the second game victory as he came in to relieve Henry Tranklin. Robert's teammates rallied from a 4- 0 deficit to post the win with a seventh inning tally. Don Metz slugged a two run homer for Oran. Oran is 12- 6 on the season.

Hurley fans 17

Despite the 17 strikeout performance of Hurley, Collins Construction made rather easy work of Harts Bread Wednesday night in Musial League action, 13-5 while Little Paint and Drywall rallied to edge Kingsway Plaza, 15-12.

Hurley got credit for all of the outs against Collins, fanning 17 and throwing out the last batter. But Collins jumped on Hurley for 10 hits, including seven doubles, to record the win.

Burnett slammed four two baggers in leading Collins 10 hit barrage that included a pair of doubles by Watkins and one by Spitler. Collins broke from a 2-2 tie in the first with three second innings runs and then opened up a 9-1 lead with four fourth inning tallies.

Little P&D rallied from a 8-6 deficit with a five run fourth inning and then put the win way with a four run sixth. Tope picked up the win.

Phase 4 won't effect bargaining

DETROIT (AP) — Phase 4 won't have a major impact on bargaining for new auto contracts, says the president of the United Auto Workers.

The UAW has not specified wage demands for its nearly 800,000 members at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. But Leonard Woodcock insisted that the national economic program announced Wednesday is flexible enough on wages and fringe benefits to accomodate the union's contract goals.

With many uncertainties about national economic policies cleared away, the union resumed outlining its demands upon the three automakers.

On Wednesday, the union called for provisions allowing the reopening of negotiations when a contract provision is set aside by the government or other outside intervention.

And the UAW told General Motors the union could not approve any contract lasting more than one year without "a provision for reopening with the right to strike," union Vice President Irving Bluestone said.

He contended the demand should not become a major issue in talks which began this week, nearly two months before contracts expire Sept. 14.

However, GM Vice President George Morris disagreed. He said: "If we're in effect negotiating a contract for less than three years, we'd have to look at all the provisions in the light of a shorter term."

Corrections pay to be corrected

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri corrections officers — prison guards, highway patrolmen and policemen — start at a lower pay than similar employes in the eight states bordering Missouri.

Before the legislature passed a bill raising the starting pay to $9,000 a year, Missouri's probation and parole officers received $6,800 a year.

These are some of the reasons behind the state Personnel Board's decision to set up a committee to study inequities in salaries for the state's 20,000 merit system employes.

The board set up the Merit Pay Inequity Review Committee, which held its first meeting Wednesday. The committee will make recommendations to the board, which will make recommendations to the governor, who can include the recommendations in his annual budget requests to the legislature.

Edward A. Godar, acting director of the state Personnel Division, said the study could affect an estimated 30,000 other state employes who are not under the merit system, which has eight salary ranges for each job classification. Employes are protected by tenure and appeals procedures.

"One of the problems is that although cost-of-living increases to all employes are needed, they will not provide recognition of meritorious performance," Godar said.

"Some state agencies have been less able than others to provide merit increases and need special attention if they are to catch up," he said. Inequities exist in the present state pay plan, both in internal relationships and in comparison to private industry."

He said some agencies have reported they can't pay enough to keep qualified people.

Charles Schulte, personnel officer for the Department of Corrections, presented results of a survey showing the starting pay for state prison guards in Missouri rank far below surrounding states and the cities of Kansas City and St. Louis and St. Louis County.

State prison guards and guards at the intermediate reformatories and at the women's prison start at $427 per month and reach a top pay of $572 a month, Schulte said.

The starting pay is $508 in Arkansas, $500 in Nebraska, $525 in Kansas, $553 in Iowa, $591 in Illinois, $457 in Kentucky and $500 in Tennessee.

The starting pay in St. Louis city, Kansas City and St. Louis County for corrections officers and policemen averages $539.35 a month, he said.

No evidence of arson

OVERLAND, Mo. (AP) — "There was no physical evidence that would indicate arson," said FBI agent Charles J. Devic Wednesday following a preliminary investigation of the charred sixth floor of the Military Personnel Records Center here.

Devic admitted, however, the investigation was not thorough because of the condition of the center's top floor, scene of a fire that burned for more than a day last week before fire fighters from some 20 St. Louis suburban fire departments brought it under control.

About 80 persons have been questioned in connection with the fire, that started July 13 shortly after midnight, Devic said, adding that the interviews "involved people who were working that night or who may have been in the area." He said the investigation will continue.

The center, operated by the General Services Administration, houses some 56 million records on former servicemen and women with more than 20 million stored on the now-blackened sixth floor.

The possibility of arson was being investigated because officials said about a dozen fires of suspicious origin had been reported in the building during the last two years.

A GSA spokesman said an accurate picture of just what lies ahead in the form of rebuilding the damaged or destroyed files through other documents won't be determined until the building is declared safe. A preliminary survey earlier this week had indicated some structural damage to the sixth floor.

Federal officials predicted Wednesday that a complete sprinkler system would be installed throughout the one-block-by-two-block record center when the building is repaired. Only the first floor and part of the second were equipped with a sprinkler system when the fire broke out.

Rep. James W. Symington, D-Mo., urged the federal government to reimburse the local fire departments for the costs they incurred in fighting the blaze.

Fire officials have complained the government pays nothing for fire protection and has given no indication that it will help cover the cost of last week's effort.

Mix up in student count

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Dr. Warren C. Lovinger, who says there was a misunderstanding on whether or not to count off-campus students at Central Missouri State University, was to meet today with the House Appropriations Committee to discuss the question of what to do about extra funds the school has received.

Lovinger, president of CMSU for 17 years, told an investigating subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee Wednesday that the school could go broke if it were made to pay back all the funds it received from reporting offcampus continuing education students.

Appropriations are given on the number of semester hours, which is based on student enrollment figures. The Commission on Higher Education has instructed the state universities not to count continuing education students for budget purposes.

But Lovinger said he and several other state university presidents got the impression last year from Jack Cross, the executive secretary of the commission, that off-campus students were to be counted. Cross has denied giving such instructions.

"There were a lot of others who misunderstood, if I misunderstood," said Lovinger.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

The American people should not be surprised at the Watergate tragedy. Mr. Nixon's entire pathway of life has been littered with warning markers indicating that this is the kind of man he has always been. Most people ignored those plainly visible warning signs but here are some of the things they clearly told us.

Richard Nixon could not make the athletic teams so his most notable accomplishment as a college student was breaking into the Deans office. In his mind he probably thinks he did it in the interest of National Security. These pathway markers tell us Nixon is a little man, a weak man who had a cheap price tag on his character and the oil companies bought him for less than 20,000 dollars. Along his trail we can read where he is a liar and a thief. Those markers show Nixon is a poor loser, when he lost the Governor's race in California he cried and blamed the press as he always blames someone else for his failures. He's a Norman Vincent Peal patch up job. After his defeat in California and his emotional weakness Mr. Peal took Nixon by the hand and gently led him back to the old Nixon way of life. Those pathway signs say Nixon does not play the game fair, he does not give his competitor an equal chance. These indicators point out Mr. Nixon has a superior almost God like image of himself, evidenced by the fact he thinks he can do no wrong and he believes he can think for all of us better than we can all thing for ourselves. He does not like individual thinkers, he likes only those who praise him and let him do their thinking for them.

He is a loner and cannot be comfortable or close to anyone. He has no compassion and uses others for personal gain and the character of those who play ball with him winds up on the dump heap. Mr. Nixon looks down at all people as being inferior to him. This same warped feeling of being superior has permitted him to slaughter thousands of people, including screaming helpless children in Vietnam, for no real purpose, but in his twisted thinking greatness was being accomplished and in Vietnam as well as everything else he does, his natural instinct of over will was put in action. I wonder how many of those armless, legless, eyeless, gutless napalmed children goes to bed with Richard each nite. They go to bed with me every nite. Those marker signs tell us Nixon is a sick man and should be treated as such.

Worthy Bills

In the wake of Watergate and related events, one thing that can be done to restore sanity to the national political process is to provide real public financing for national political elections.

Approximately 55 or more members of Congress have co-sponsored a bill, H.R. 7612, calling for public financing of federal elections. About nine or more senators have cosponsored a somewhat similar bill, S. 11, providing for public financing of federal elections.

Those who believe that election reform is called for should investigate the merits of these bills and contact their members of Congress and senators, requesting support for these or some similar bills, providing for public financing of federal elections.

To the Editor:

We would appreciate your printing this letter in your "Mail Bag" or "Letters to the Editor"

Dear Sir:

During an interview, Madame Chou- En- Lai stated that "Equal rights for women are necessary to futher the (Communist) revolution."

Consider the following results if the Equal Rights Amendment is ratified:

1. there will be a breakdown of family structure.
2. girls will be drafted — consider your daughter as a P.O.W.
3. women can be legally responsible for one- half household debts and expenses.
4. the status of men and women will suffer.

Women's rights are already protected in our Constitution under the 5th and 14th Amendments. You can help in the next year's battle in defeating the E.R.A. state ratification by writing to your state representative and senator stating your views. Better still, contact them personally. Do it now. For further information regarding this bill, write to the "Committee for the Protection of Women and Children", P. O. Box 502, Jefferson City, Missouri 65101.

Thank You!

July 19, 1923

A territory extending four or five miles in every direction from Sikeston was visited by a heavy downpour of rain last Sunday. The rain was accompanied by a hard wind and considerable electrical manifestations. Jake Sitzes had a large hay barn on his farm at Brown Spur blown down and wrecked.

Attention is called about the opening of "Economy Center," which is the name S.B. Hardwick is giving to the store he will open in Sikeston about the middle of August. The new store will be located in the new Malcolm building on Front street.

W.H. Carter, who conducts a store in the Frisco addition, was seriously injured in an accident last Friday and is still in a critical condition. The accident occured as Mr. Carter was driving his horse and delivery wagon to his store after having made a delivery of some groceries.

Ground was staked off yesterday for Sikeston's second cotton gin. This will be located on the P.H. Gross lots near the Frisco railroad, south of the Frisco station.

What's the Law?

The case of the lumbered tenant

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Looey was a businessman "Au Goof." Seeing a big building being erected, he put two and two together and, unfortunately, got five. He figured that the building would contain a multitude of hungry employes and obtained a lease from the landlord to open a fancy restaurant on the ground floor.

When it opened, however, it contained everything but customers. The prime tenant in the building, a large corporation, decided to maintain a lunchroom on its premises where food was sold to its 500 employes at ridiculously low prices.

Taking a dim view of the situation, Looey started a lawsuit against the landlord.

"Under our lease, " he pointed out to the judge, "the landlord specifically agreed that my restaurant was to have no competition; that no public restaurant or luncheonette was to be allowed in the building except mine. Yet, I've been lumbered out of 500 customers. I want the landlord ordered to enforce the noncompetitive clause in our lease."

"But no one's competing with Looey," responded the landlord. "If a tenant wants to provide food for his employes, he's got a right to do it. It's like a father feeding his kids. Certainly, Looey can't object to that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require Looey's landlord to close down the corporation's lunchroom?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the corporation's lunchroom was not in competition with Looey's restaurant since it was not open to the public. When a tenant rents business space, concluded the judge in effect, he may use it for any reasonable business purpose. And providing food facilities for employes is not an unreasonable business use.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Vitamin E: No Miracles

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — What is all this talk about vitamin E and what it can do in large doses for certain ailments? Why are there so many books printed saying what good it does? My own doctor doesn't recognize it as being of any importance. Why are such books allowed to be printed if these facts aren't true? If they are true, why doesn't the American Medical Assn. recognize this. If large doses of certain vitamins are recognized as doing great things, why don't our doctors suggest we use them? Has this vitamin theory been tried by any of our doctors to prove to the AMA that they are or are not what these books claim them to be?

Dear Reader— Scientific journals sponsored by recognized medical organizations only print articles that have been reviewed carefully by knowledgeable scientists. Unfortunately, many of the articles in the popular press and news items on radio and TV are not subjected to critical review by scientists.

Quacks use the media to promote their products. A case in point is the celebrated quack, Dr. John Brinkley. He grafted sections of goat glands into men who were suffering from impotence. He proclaimed the great success of his goat gland transplants to anyone who would listen and published it wherever he could, but not in scientific journals. Actually in such cases the AMA is the consumers' advocate, protecting the public against fraudulent medical practices. Through such organized efforts, Dr. Brinkley was finally run out of the United States. It is this protection of the public that causes quacks to flourish along the borders, because it is illegal for them to carry on their frauds in the United States.

There are some benefits from vitamin E. It is not, however, a cure-all. The December issue of the Consumer's Report listed about 60 things vitamin E has been falsely claimed to cure. One group of doctors who wrote a popular book and have a large practice have been under fire in their own country because their claims are unsubstantiated.

There must be a streak of paranoia in our public about the medical profession. There is absolutely no reason for any doctor not to recommend vitamins of any type to a person if they are of proved value. What purpose would this serve? Doctors do prescribe vitamin E for a few specific medical conditions where it is known to be of value. It really would make very little difference to a physician whether he prescribed a vitamin E tablet or some other tablet, if it helped. In reasonable doses, vitamin E isn't toxic or harmful. It isn't going to cure all the illnesses that it has been touted to do by some of the unscrupulous marketing mechanisms that exist. These marketing mechanisms literally prey on people's fears, and on individuals who have problems which can't be cured. I do believe that there's reason to do extensive research on vitamin E. It may have some functions that have not yet been defined, and I'm all for that. Vitamin E is apparently essential to the body, but the limited amounts usually needed are readily available in many common foods.

'Walking Tall' not the real story

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Before Buford Pusser was 32 years old, he had served three two-year terms as sheriff of McNairy County, Tenn. During that time, his wife was killed from ambush and Pusser had a number of close calls. In 1972, after staying out of office for two years, he was eligible to run for sheriff again, but lost. The events of 1967 changed both his appearance and his way of life.

By LORENE FREDERICK

TUSCUMBIA, Ala. (AP)— Buford Pusser stood on the hard concrete signing autographs. He had been at it for hours, and more hours would pass.

Tuscumbia was the place this time. To Pusser it was just another town on an endless circuit of personal appearances.

Catapulted into celebrity status by the movie "Walking Tall" and the book "The Twelfth of August," Pusser follows a grueling schedule, traveling several hundred miles each week. Signing the biography for a teen- ager who had commented on the movie, Pusser smiled. Only one side of his face moved. The left side, shot away by would- be assassin's bullets, is man- made and immobile.

It's all like a dream, as if all this were happening to someone else," Pusser said, adding, "I'm not exactly happy with the movie.

"Oh, it is basically true, dramatized, of course, but you expect that. What I don't like is the cursing, the bad language.

"Okay, so I say a bad word once in a while, but not like that. And all the things those men are saying. I don't think it was necessary."

Pusser says he realizes that despite his fame, he still is a controversial figure.

"It is really hard for people who don't know me to separate the fact from the fiction. The more the tale is told, the bigger the bear gets," he said.

It has been rumored that Pusser averaged killing a man a month during his last two years in office. Asked about it, he said, "Why I only killed two persons in my entire life."

The first was a woman. "She fired on me first," he said, recalling the Feb. 1, 1966, event. He said it didn't happen exactly as pictured in the movie, but somewhat similarly.

The other person who died at Pusser's gun was an ex-convict who was drunk and on a shooting binge. He apparently had no connection with the gang on the state line against whom Pusser's real fight was waged.

In W. R. Morris' biography of Pusser, he said: "When Pusser first pinned on the sheriff's badge (Sept. 1, 1964), a milelong strip of dives, gambling joints, houses of prostitution, peopled by bootleggers and cutthroats straddled the line between McNairy County, Tenn., and Alcorn County, Miss. The strip was a stopping- off place for hoodlums hiding from the law. Tourists constantly complained of being robbed and weighted bodies were often found in the nearby Tennessee River."

The line now is quiet. Most of the clubs have burned. Last year, McNairy County citizens turned down Pusser's bid for another term as sheriff. He says he never will seek the office again.

"I would like to continue in some area of law enforcement, perhaps with the state. In a supervisory position with plenty of manpower, I feel I could help the young people, Pusser said.

His plans right now are indefinite.

"They're talking about a television series if the movie keeps going strong," he said.

The events of Aug. 12, 1967, which left Pusser widowed and hospitalized with half his face shot away, also robbed him forever of privacy.

"I used to cook out a lot on Sundays, but I can't do that anymore," he said. When he is at home in Adamsville, Tenn., there is an almost constant parade of people stopping to talk, to make pictures.

"I've never been bitter. Things just as bad have happened to other people. I try not to dwell on the past," the former law officer said.

Pusser has been featured in many magazines and newspaper articles, but never reads any of it. "People clip things and send them to me. They all go into a scrapbook. Perhaps someday I will read them. I've never even read Morris' book, he said.

Asked what he would do differently if he had it to do again, Pusser replied: "Could I have foreseen the death of my wife, I would not have run for sheriff. As for the rest, the price I have paid was well worth it."

Asked if he still was looking for his wife's killers, he answered:

"Most of them are dead. One was killed in Corinth, Miss. Others were killed in Boston. I don't know who all was mixed up in it, but the rest are minor hoodlums."

"The Twelfth of August," meanwhile, is selling well and is in its second printing.

Author Morris said he was working for a Memphis newspaper when violence broke out in McNairy County in 1967.

He said he dug into court records and other documents after taking about six months to really get to know Pusser.

"The book names people and places. "It's the real life story of Buford Pusser," Morris said.

About "Walking Tall," Morris had this to say:

"It is a good movie, a great piece of fiction. So far as being his actual life story, it is not. I was kind of disappointed."

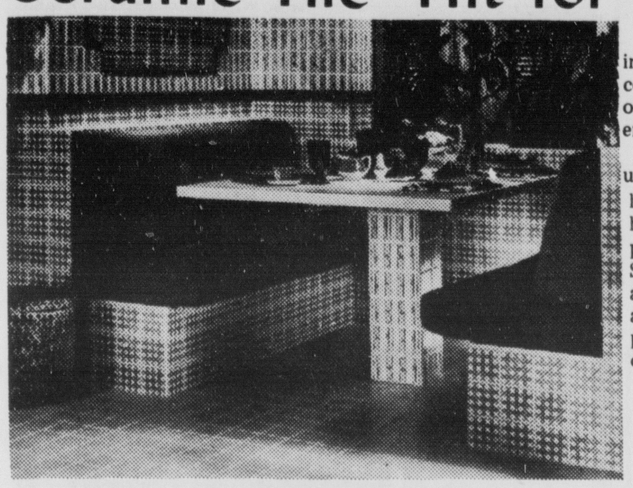
Ceramic Tile Hit for Kitchens



TILED BREAKFAST NOOK—Two popular decorative looks are combined here, cane and bamboo. The washable, glazed ceramic tiles are easy to care for and are used on walls as well as for banquettes and pedestal-tiled table.

BY VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The new decorative look of ceramic tile is making it even more popular as an easy-care surface in the kitchen.

Whereas one might have hesitated before to use a high-style, solid-color ceramic tile all over the kitchen, fearing one's interest in the color would wane, the emphasis in tiles is on timeless go-with-anything patterns and textures. Such backgrounds can be used with strong colors, other patterns and shapes as accents.

In an informal built-in breakfast nook, two popular decorative looks, cane and bamboo, were combined in tiles to provide a handsome appearance. And both these patterns might be used with solid colors. Banquettes and the area below the chairs were done in the cane motif, while the wall area above was done in bamboo tile. The bamboo design was also used for the permanent pedestal from floor to a table's tile-surfaced top of a plain color.

The cane or bamboo pattern in gold and white makes it compatible with other colors one might want to use in kitchen appliances or accessories.

Other patterns intended for use over large areas include herringbone, plaids and even a houndstooth check which can provide similar advantages. Some geometrics in circles, arcs, stripes or cubes also achieve timeless decorating, providing the background colors are adaptable.

Some of the articles recovered from the Poe home at 210 W. Pine St. include a portable radio, three pairs of shoes, rugs, linens clothing, and a portable television.

have special regulations.

—The new ceiling prices for gasoline and the gasoline octane rating must be posted on service station pumps after they take effect Aug. 12.

The objective of Phase 4 was stated as "to moderate the rate of inflation existing during the first six months of 1973 with a minimum adverse effect on supply."

Inflation was increasing at an annual rate of about 9.2 per cent a year at the time the freeze was imposed June 13, with food prices increasing at the virtually unprecedented rate of 22.4 per cent.

Shultz told newsmen the administration would make no new forecast for inflation or the increase in food prices.

"We have not tried to make a precise estimate. Our record in trying to forecast food prices leaves you a little humble," he said, drawing laughter from reporters.

Nixon said in his statement that the increase in prices should be less in the second half of this year than in the first half, and that by next year, "we should be able to achieve a much more moderate rate of inflation."

The President also said he will aim for a balanced budget of $268.7 billion in fiscal 1974. To meet this goal, he said, a number of civilian government employes will have to be cut from the federal payroll.

However, the administration plans to increase the staff of the Cost of Living Council and the Internal Revenue Service by about 1,200 to enforce Phase 4.

Nixon plans to resume schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, pronounced recovered from viral pneumonia and ready to leave his hospital quarters Friday, is planning to carry out as full a schedule as possible next week, White House spokesmen said.

Nixon hoped to be discharged today from the Bethesda, Md., Naval hospital but his doctors persuaded him to remain there until Friday morning, when he will fly by helicopter to Camp David, Md., for a weekend rest.

Shortly before 8 a.m. the White House issued the following medical report:

"The President ate dinner after being visited by Julie and David Eisenhower. He slept throughout the night without difficulty and was still asleep at 7:45 a.m. this morning.

"His temperature has remained normal. No further treatment will be required today. The President will continue to meet with his staff and have interval rest periods."

The President is likely to "get back to work on a fulltime basis starting Monday," press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler reported Wednesday. His first public appearance will come on the following day when he welcomes the Shah and Empress of Iran for a two-day state visit.

Nixon had a final chest X-ray Wednesday afternoon and a medical report said "the pneumonia appears completely resolved and he continues to show progressive improvement."

The President was scheduled to be given an electrocardiogram today as a routine precaution. His personal physician, Air Force Maj. Gen. Walter R. Tkach, reported that electrocardiogram results were normal on July 12, the day Nixon entered the hospital.

Tkach said of Nixon's condition Wednesday, "with the exception that he could become fatigued, he is essentially a well man." He said "the physical findings now are essentially normal and all therapy and medication have been halted."

Tkach said he will expect Nixon to take an hour's rest each morning and afternoon for a week or 10 days after he leaves the hospital.

Mardianinvolved against his will

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian testified today that he became involved in the Watergate cover-up against his conscience, and because he felt it was a lawyer's duty to serve his clients in confidence.

Mardian, now a private businessman in Phoenix, Ariz., testified before the Senate Watergate committee about his actions as an official of the Nixon re-election campaign last year.

Mardian denied that he had any knowledge of the Watergate wiretapping plans until after the abortive burglary at Democratic headquarters June 17, 1972.

Starting that day, he said, he began to receive the story of the wiretapping affair bit by bit. He said what he learned made him feel as though he were caught in quicksand.

Mardian's testimony followed that of another former campaign aide, Frederick C. LaRue, who said former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III both shared his awareness of a scheme to cover up facts behind the wiretapping.

EAST PRAIRIE — Larry McCutchen of East Prairie was fined $10 for discharging fireworks and $25 for careless and heedless driving this morning in police court. Jack Jackman of East Prairie was assessed a $20 fine for public intoxication.

CHARLESTON — John Henry of Kirkwood was arrested Wednesday for public intoxication, and fined $18 this morning in city court.
